Interns comprised of two business school interns along with two engineering interns each from Oregon State University, Portland State University, Oregon-Tech, and Washington State University, Vancouver. The interns were jointly supervised by Principal Investigators from each school along with managers from Oregon Manufacturing Extension Program (OMEP) and host firms to offer interns a holistic and integrated problem solving experience to address both business and technological needs at firms.

Principal Investigator for LCB/VO

Federal Funding Agency: Economic Development Agency, 2013

Amount Funded for LCB/VO: $40,000 (plus LCB/VO cost share $20,000)

Total Funding (across five schools): $200,000

Total Funding under JIAC III for Greater Portland Cluster in Advanced Materials & Metals: $2.19 million.

Principal Investigator for a Feasibility Study for the Northwest Collaboratory for Sustainable Manufacturing (NWCSM) (Completed, March 2013) that has facilitated funding by the Oregon Legislature for NWCSM as noted by Public Affairs Counsel, *“The NWCSM is modeled to build off the long term success that the Oregon Metals Initiative has experienced in its partnership with private industries and Oregon Engineering Research Universities. Most recently, the University of Oregon’s Lundquist College of Business examined best practices used by collaboratories around the world and developed a business plan for the NWCSM. The report has been attached for your review. During the 2013 Oregon Legislative Session the legislature approved $2.9 million dollars to expand metals research through the NWCSM, with a primary goal to expand research to focus on Manufacturing Readiness Levels (MRL) 4-7’, 2013. The report has subsequently been cited to secure $7.5 million funding from Oregon Legislature in May 2016 for founding the Oregon Manufacturing Innovation Center R&D (OMIC) that has subsumed NWCSM for supporting a greater vision for the metals manufacturing industry. More details under “Industry Report”. Oregon Legislature as approved an additional $12 million for OMIC

R&D in July 2017.

Collaborating Faculty: Beth Hjelm and Doug Wilson.

Collaborating Faculty: Helped design and facilitate the business school component for a proposal by Principal Investigators Anita Weiss and Jeff Hanes at University of Oregon, 2013. The State Department has approved the budget for grant # SCAPPD-13-CA-104-SCA-06102013, “Establishment of an Academic Partnership in Business Management & Environmental Sciences with Karakoram International University (KIU) in Gilgit, Pakistan.” This is a large scale grant for about $1 million that facilitates a deep interaction between UO and KIU over a three year period (2013 – 16).

Jobs and Innovation Accelerator Challenge (JIAC-I) Grant for Clean-Tech Cluster in Oregon.

Principal Investigator for University of Oregon and Lead Member for Collaboration in the Cluster spanning Manufacturing 21, Portland Development Commission, Work-Systems, Inc., Oregon University System Schools (LCB/UO and Engineering Schools at Portland State University and Oregon Tech), Washington State University-Vancouver, Oregon BEST, and several economic development entities in Portland.

Total Grant: $2.1 Million (The LCB/UO share of this grant is expected to fund for 4 – 6 research faculty members and 2 – 3 doctoral students across Decision Science, Management, and Marketing in focused research and educational initiatives outlined below)

- Cluster Opportunities Report: (Entails assessment of the overall performance of the clean-tech initiatives via JIAC Grant and development of benchmarks; includes field base research of participant firms)

Principal Investigator

Federal Funding Agency: Economic Development Agency, 2011

Amount Funded for LCB/UO: $52,000 (plus LCB/UO cost share of $52,000)

- Customized Management Training for Decision Makers at about 50 selected firms in the clean-tech sector (Entails a deep engagement with the participant firms prior to developing customized workshops; a team of faculty and doctoral students in decision sciences, management, and marketing will engage via field visits, structured interviews, surveys, case studies, identifying problem-solving opportunities, and undertaking relevant research (empirical or economic modeling) to offer strategic and tactical managerial insights).

Principal Investigator

Federal Funding Agency: Economic Development Agency, 2011

Amount Funded for LCB/UO: $178,000

- Field-Based or Industry-Driven Research on Enhancing the Business and Manufacturing Competitiveness of 3 – 5 high potential firms as part of the collaboration with the Northwest Collaboratory for Sustainable Manufacturing (NWCSM). These firms will also receive technical support from the Engineering schools as part of their funded research. The LCB/UO research component will engage faculty in the areas of entrepreneurship, strategy, marketing, and supply chain management along with a couple of doctoral students, and use a combination of in-depth case studies and economic modeling to build insights for addressing key challenges faced by these firms. In addition, we plan to engage some MBAs in problem-solving projects that in conjunction with the research will enhance the ability of these firms to hone their business strategy, operations, and supply chain management (including any processes focused on technological innovation or new product development). The goal is to enable these firms to leverage both technological (support from technical research at PSU, OIT, and WSU-V) and business support to put them on a better trajectory for success, growth, and job creation.
